Art Unit: 2665

1. Claim 32 is objected to under 37 CFR 1.75(c), as being of improper dependent form for failing to further limit the subject matter of a previous claim. Applicant is required to cancel the claim(s), or amend the claim(s) to place the claim(s) in proper dependent form, or rewrite the claim(s) in independent form.

Claim 32 depends on claim 23, which fails to further limit the subject matter of claim 23 since the claim has been canceled in the response dated January 20, 2006.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 18-22, 34-36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over SCHAFFER et al. in U.S. Patent No. 6,687,234 B1(of record), hereinafter referred as Schaffer, in view of BREITENBACH et al. in Pub. No. US 2002/0016729 A1 (newly cited), hereinafter referred as Breitenbach.

Referring to claims 18 and 34, Schaffer discloses a network server (112a) configured to facilitate communication among a plurality of endpoints (102a and 103a), the server comprising: a network management system (105a) configured to automatically and dynamically coordinate cascading of two or more multipoint control units for expanding a number of endpoints in a multi-point conference (col. 4, lines 18-35); a gatekeeper (108a) configured to implement one or more network policies set by a network administrator, wherein the network policies include one or more items selected from the group consisting of: call authorization, call management, network bandwidth management (col. 3, line 57 to col. 4, line 17); and a resource scheduler

(105) configured to coordinate the multipoint conferencing and relay conference requests to MCUs (col. 3, lines 28-33).

Schaffer differs from the claim, in that, it does not disclose a specific resource scheduler to perform one or more activities selected from the group consisting of: interacting with the calendars of others on the network, sending conference invitations to others on the network, updating participant calendars upon acceptance of an invitation, and communicating with the gatekeeper upon receiving a conference request from one of the endpoints, which is well known element in the art and commonly used in networking for resource allocation and event scheduling purposes.

Breitenbach, for example, from the similar field of endeavor, teaches the use of a specific resource scheduler for performing one or more activities selected from the group consisting of: interacting with the calendars of others on the network, sending conference invitations to others on the network, updating participant calendars upon acceptance of an invitation, and communicating with the gatekeeper upon receiving a conference request from one of the endpoints (paragraph [0017], [0266] to [0269]) for resource allocation and event scheduling purposes as claimed.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to adopt the feature of utilizing a specific resource scheduler in replacing the scheduler in Schaffer to maximize the bandwidth allocation to further improve the system efficiency.

Referring to claims 19 and 35, Schaffer discloses a gateway (106a) operative to provide interface functionality between different network types,

Art Unit: 2665

Referring to claims 20 and 21, Schaffer discloses the resource scheduler resides in the network management system or in one or more of the plurality of endpoints (col. 3, lines 36-37).

Referring to claims 22 and 36, Breitenbach discloses that the network policies implemented by the gatekeeper vary as a function of time of day or day of week (paragraph [0078] to [0080], [0146], [0266] to [0271].

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Jorgensen '915, '885, '246, '629, '248, '922 & '622 are all cited to show the common feature of wireless point to multi-point transmission system utilizing resource allocation device, analyzing and scheduling device, gatekeeper and gateway similar to the claimed invention.
